The talk is about the impact of machine learning research on security and vice versa. It discusses several examples from each perspective. It also covers recent developments in adversarial machine learning, which are used by hackers to defeat security mechanisms based on regular machine learning techniques.