

2025 call for Women's Postdoctoral Career Development Award in Science

Application
deadline

May 1, 2025

For women scientists who have completed at least one year and no more than four years of postdoctoral research abroad in the natural or exact sciences.

The Weizmann Institute of Science oversees this national program, which funds outstanding women postdocs training at leading research institutions outside of Israel, as a key step toward a career in science.

The award is for candidates who have completed at least one year and no more than four years of postdoctoral training at the time of submission, and includes the following:

- › Prize of $70,000 (USD) distributed over a two-year period
- › Private sessions with a professional career development consultant
- › Travel fund of $2,000 for job interviews in Israel
- › Help in connecting with relevant contacts at the Weizmann Institute of Science

The prize is awarded based on merit only, according to a proven track record of excellence.

10 women will be selected for the 2025 award.
